

GSI Opens AirWorld Technology Center

Kansas City, MO – October 27, 2006 – GreenSoft Solutions, Inc. (GSI), one of Kansas City’s largest commercial data center operators, announces today the opening of its AirWorld Technology Center near KCI airport. The facility is located at 10828 NW AirWorld Drive in Kansas City, Missouri.

The expansion supports the hosting provider’s strategy to address the growing demand for commercial data center space from corporate clients nationwide. This facility coupled with the company’s other two data centers in downtown Kansas City expands GSI’s Kansas City properties to almost 100,000 square feet. Through a unique network configuration, all three data centers are linked together electronically, providing multiple options for remote data storage, asset deployment and disaster recovery.

The AirWorld Technology Center is housed within a 77,000 square foot concrete building and contains over 20,000 square feet of raised floor data center space located within a secure interior envelope. Serviced by dual power feeds from Aquila, backed up by two diesel generators and distributed to equipment through redundant paths, GSI offers its clients continuous service from this 24/7 manned facility. Security measures include dual authentication access control, video surveillance with DVR recording, above and under floor monitoring for heat and smoke detection, and around-the-clock physical inspections by hosting operations staff.

“We are excited about our AirWorld facility and are confident that clients and prospects will appreciate the infrastructure that we have implemented,” says Kelly Kephart, President and CEO of GSI. “When linked to our other properties and managed by our professional hosting staff, it offers clients numerous choices in the construction of their computing environments and allows the best solution to be delivered every time.”
